More Trees Cut On Airstrip

In my last letter to the editor I reported that one enormous pepper tree had been cut down illegally on the easement along Lupin Lane adjacent to the Carmel Valley Airstrip. The day after I wrote, two more were cut down along Lupin. In the weeks following, my neighbors and I have been uncovering more and more stumps whose lovely trees have fallen under the chainsaw of Lars DeJounge, lessee of the property. To date we have counted, marked and registered with the county 29 stumps, 22 of which seem to be the remains of trees that fell this year along Lupin Lane, Lilac Lane, and Poppy Road without any permits.

Supervisor Dave Potter has been contacted. His concern for our area has spurred him to send out a team of Public Works employees to investigate. We have given them our statistics. We have shown them our fluorescent orange count sprayed on the roadways. (We have also told them that we have gray paint to cover up the orange once the investigation is completed. We just found it difficult to identify the stumps given they were covered in dirt, grass, and branch piles.)

The team from road maintenance and Public Safety wanted to be accurate in their report, so they will do a survey of Lupin Lane in order to measure where the trees were. That will hopefully be done within two weeks.

I feel it's my civic duty to inform my community about what I have discovered along these roads. I invite you to drive the circumference of the airstrip, look at the orange paint, and check out the location of the stumps. It saddens me greatly to know that one individual has taken it into his hands to defoliate our beautiful Valley.

You've Got Mail

Why is the Royal Canadian Mounted Police (RCMP) upset about not getting a reply from Bill Phillips, Monterey County Planning Director?

Will the RCMP send Dudley Doright and Nell to arrest Mr. Phillips "In the Name of the Crown" for not answering his mail? Maybe he didn't put enough postage on the letter.

Stay tuned. And meanwhile, be alert for black helicopters coming from the North.

Cartoonist Showcase

The Carmel Art Association will present a special Gallery Showcase in May featuring the cartoon drawings of Eldon Dedini, Bill Bates, Gus Arriola and Rip Matteson. The show, called "Our Four Cartoonists" will be exhibited in the Barney Segal room at the CAA galleries May 6 through June 2.

All four cartoonists have national recognition and have won numerous awards between them. Gus Arriola's well-loved comic strip about Gordo, the portly Mexican bus-driver, ran for forty-four years in national syndication until his retirement in 1983.

Bill Bates is well known locally for his clever weekly cartoons in local newspapers that unerringly illustrate the humorous aspects of life in Carmel-by-the-Sea. Since 1990 his cartons have also graced the lobby of the Carmel Post Office.

Eldon Dedini's cartoons have appeared regularly in Playboy, The New Yorker, and Esquire for over 50 years. His images of Rubenesque women and horned satyrs created in watercolor and ink are part of his extensive repertoire of characters, and are distinctly Dedini.

Rip Matteson's cartoons have been published in The New Yorker, Saturday Review, Punch, Playboy, Playgirl, San Francisco Chronicle and other publications since the 1980s. (Mr. Matteson is also showing a large collection of his oil paintings and drawings in a separate show, "Rip Matteson's Joy of Life" this month in the Beardsley Room).

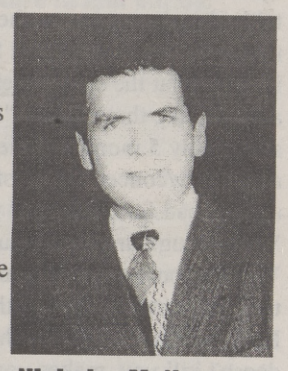
The Carmel Art Association is located on Dolores Street between 5ht and 6th and is open daily from 10 to 5. For more information, please call 624-6176.

Nicholas McNeaney Joins Monterey Plaza Hotel

It's what so many executives daydream about: moving from hectic city life to one of the most celebrated coastal locations in America, Monterey, California.

That's the story with Nicholas McNeaney, who has just been appointed Sales Manager at the Monterey Plaza Hotel and Spa.

The announcement was made by John Narigi, Vice President and General Manager of the Monterey Plaza.



Nicholas McNeaney

Prior to this post, he served as senior Sales Manger at Hyatt Fisherman's Wharf Hotel in San Francisco. He had also been Director of Sales and Assistant General Manager at the Grosvenor Hotel in South San Francisco, and Cost Controller at the San Mateo (CA) Dunfey Hotel.

Mr. Narigi says that Nick's addition to the staff at the Monterey Plaza Hotel and Spa couldn't be more timely, with the addition of a new penthouse-level European-style Spa and luxury suites, to complement the hotel's other impressive accommodations, award-winning restaurants, and conference facilities on Monterey Bay.

The Monterey Plaza Hotel and Spa is associated with Woodside Hotels and Resorts.

Killer Bacteria

After decades of miraculous cures from antibiotics, physicians are now confronting bacteria that have mutated and built defenses against these drugs. Western populations are face-to-face with superbug invaders. These bugs now cause death in patients who once could have been treated with antibiotics, but those don't work anymore.

Killer bacteria now stalk us because many common antibiotics have been overused and are now simply powerless.

Monterey Rock & Art Festival

Monterey's Largest Collection of Indie Bands is Back for Its Third Year By Mac Talley

This Saturday, May 8th, the historic Monterey Fairgrounds will host the 3rd Annual Rock & Art Festival. The festival debuted in 1997 as the brainchild of Susan and Brad Mallory of three spirits. That first show was considered a promising start, with a huge array of local groups, California bands and headliners (like Mother Hips and Salmon) joining in the two day event. However, last year's festival was plagued by problems from the get-go. The three spirits board split with Brad Mallory over rushing to produce a show without headliners, promotion or sponsors. Since co-founder Susan Mallory was busy in San Francisco, Brad soldiered on--determined to stage some kind of event. Then, a week before the June show, a local weekly printed a tabloid-style expose on the three spirits warehouse in Sand City. Isn't it ironic that the same weekly that had awarded the three spirits "Local Hero" status only 5 months earlier, accused their art gallery/concert space of being (gasp!) a crash pad for artists and musicians. With enough unnamed sources to start a Washington scandal, the article guaranteed its writer a future at the National Enquirer. But you know the saying: what doesn't kill you, makes you stronger. The Festival did go on, but it was more like a low-key picnic for local bands to hang out together at. "To be honest," Susan Mallory told me over the phone from San Francisco, "the first festival was mostly me, while the second one was mostly Brad. This time we're both contributing equally and that's why it's destined to be the best one so far."

Michael Aston's Jene Loves Jezebel headlines on the Garden of Eden Stage at 9:45.

This year's event may quiet even the loudest armchair critics. Susan has returned with a vengeance. The festival has been scaled back to a one-day event, they have picked up several important sponsors (like radio stations KFOG and KROQ, Tixtogo, The Sun and SF Weekly), they have kept ticket prices down to $10, and have added headliners Gene Loves Jezebel to the over 40 bands already booked. Unlike last year, people have actually heard about this festival, or seen the decorative posters advertising it. A website has definitely helped get the word out, and for the first time there has been a lot of advance ticket sales. While naysayers will grumble and wish that our area would stick to golf, tourism and retirement recreation, music festivals (like the blues and jazz ones) have helped put Monterey on the map, and made the County richer in every sense of the word.

"We've weathered the storms all festivals have to go through in their early stages," Brad Mallory told me. "Now we want to establish this as an ongoing event every year."

The 3rd annual Rock & Art Festival starts at 11:30 this Saturday morning and runs until after midnight. The music styles include rock, funk, pop, punk, ska, electronica, folk and theatrical. There will be three outdoor stages and one inside the Turf Club.

(Clip the accompanying band schedule, so you can catch your own personal favorites.) Since there are too many acts to describe in detail, let me focus on a number that you shouldn't miss! The Chantigs, an amusing quartet from Frisco that wear outlandish wigs and sing pop songs in high falsetto voices, appear in the Turf Club at noon. Naughty Babies, a local outfit led by exuberant and energetic singer Johnny Love, and embellished by the impressive keyboards of Mitch Faddem, take the Garden Stage at 12:45. They are followed by power trio Jed-Eye, which features Johnny Moezzi and James Finlay. Supersugar is Susan Mallory's rarely-seen live project, and will play the Pond Stage at 2pm. Highlights of the Circus Stage at the edge of the fairgrounds will be the loud punk of Turn (featuring Roy Kurano) at 12:45 and the roadhouse rock of Notion at 5pm. Notion are not part of the "Y'alternative" movement, comprised of hicks playing grunge, but instead perform mean twin-guitar rock that covers the gamut from Tom Petty Americana, to Deven Finnie's blustery originals, to new wave gems by The Cars. The message-oriented reggae of Unshakable and the power of S.T.U.B. rounds out the day.

The action shifts to the main stage for several acts. Foamscape plays the Garden Stage at 5pm, with their blend of power pop & super rock--tinged with the psychedelic. You've got to love their version of that nugget "2000 Light Years From Home". Rumor has it that the quartet of Foamen will focus on their newer material. Mockingbird follows at 6:45 with their high-energy, melodic hard rock. Since the Kramers are leaving the Monterey area for Colorado at the end of May, this may be the last chance for you rabid Bird fans to hear them for a long time. Man, I dig those cats! (Good luck, Johnny O. & Candy O.) Dura Delinquent follows at 7:30. They are a young local band who are enamored with early Rolling Stones riffs, dress in a glam style and approach their performances with the rude confrontational style of punk. Whether you like them or abhor them, the Delinquents always put on a show. The Knittles land on earth at 8:30 with their theatrical space opera music that can veer into funk, 70's pop or pure drama--depending on their mood. Expect bizarre wigs, masks and robes as part of the presentation. Psychedelicize your mind! You haven't lived until you've heard them sing "In The Year 2525" by Zager & Evans and "Lay Down Your Candle" by Melanie.

Naughty Babies

After winners are announced from the high school art competition, headliners Gene Loves Jezebel take the Garden Stage at 9:45. Because of their two recent well-attended shows at Doc's Nightclub, GLJ has built a strong local following. Their style is an amalgam of goth, glam and L.A. pop. Gene Loves Jez are best known for their 80's hits "Jealous" & "Desire", as well as for leader Michael Aston's unique (ahem) vocal stylings. GLJ will be a good band to see outdoors in the dark, with their swirling guitars and brooding, propulsive bass-heavy sound. Of course there will be plenty of other talented acts--including the debut of Rick Vagnini's band: Hippie Bastard--throughout the day. You can bet that the festival isn't over until Brad Mallory sings "Knocking On Heaven's Door" at Uncle Jam's All Star Jam in the Turf Club at midnight.

Beyond the wide variety of music, there will be a panoply of art on display in the gallery room. Students at several Monterey high schools will show their work, as will artists from three spirits early years in Pacific Grove. Even Michael Aston from Gene Loves Jezebel plans to have his artwork up. Of course there will be food vendors, band CD's for sale, and a chill out room designed by John Talon and Josh Mars. You know, a hospitality lounge for musicians and spectators who want to have a conversation, or rest their ears between acts. "The theme of this year's show is: the evolution of the revolution, the importance of making peace in these turbulent times," Susan Mallory told me.

If nothing else, this festival is one of the best-priced introductions to a host of great local and regional bands. Someday you may see one of these groups in a stadium with bad sound. As you squint through binoculars a mile away from the stage, you'll remember the good old days at the Rock & Art Festival in the Monterey Fairgrounds.

Ron Eschete Trio

Wednesday
May 8

Guitarist Ron Eschete has been playing in the Los Angeles area for years. He has taught guitar at the Guitar Institute in Hollywood, and plays a seven string guitar that enables him to play both melody and chords simultaneously. His own CD Mo' Strings Attached is available on the Jazz Alliance label. His long-time friend and local pianist Jan Denau will join Eschete. Denau plays regularly at Spanish Bay and the Monterey Hyatt, and stylistically is influenced by Erroll Garner. This will no doubt be an evening of some tasty playing and classic jazz.

Saturday
May 15

Jon Mayer Trio

Pianist and composer Jon Mayer played in New York in the late '50s and '60s with Kenny Dorham, Pete LaRoca, Jackie McLean and John Coltrane. He also played with Chet Baker, Sara Vaughan, and led Manhattan Transfer band for a time. After 12 years hiatus from the music scene, Mayer is back in the swing of things. Stanley Naftaly, in the February issue of Jazz Now, finds Mayer's playing "exciting, passionate, and perfectly centered." Don't miss this exciting evening at The Jazz

The current issue of US News & World Report has an article discussing this specific problem.

Gordon Melcher, President of East Park Research, has evidence that we now posses the defense to the alarming number of infectious diseases. Not since the introduction of penicillin has a weapon this powerful emerged to treat deadly diseases, such as Ebola Zaire, HIV, Parasites, Yeast, Fungus, and a host of others.

Dick Bruhn's

Two men with more than a half century of apparel industry experience between them have been named to manage the Dick Bruhn store in downtown Monterey.

Al Zarzana has been appointed manager and Peter Deykerhoff assistant manager of the store that relocated to Alvarado St. after 25 years in Carmel.

A resident of Monterey, Zarzana has been in the business for 36 years, including 20 in wholesale before joining Dick Bruhn. He managed the company's Carmel store for 4 years, serves on the board of the Monterey Old Town Association and is a past president of the Carmel Business Association.

Deykerhoff worked for 10 years at upscale clothing stores before joining Dick Bruhn 5 years ago. A native of Holland, Deykerhoff lives in Pacific Grove and has been a peninsula resident for 12 years.

John Miner and Hella Rothwell Are Taking Carmel Valley to Cyberspace

John Miner and Hella Rothwell at The Website Store in Mid Valley.

Soon the world will be able to visit Carmel Valley, at least on-line. From your laptop you'll be able to view the rooms at Stonepine, check out the latest goods at the antique store, or see if the latest issue of your favorite Carmel Valley winemaker is available for tasting. It's coming May 15 so be sure and bookmark carmelvalleycalifornia.com.

John Miner and Hella Rothwell opened The Website Store in Mid Valley Shopping Center on April 12 and will officially launch carmelvalleycalifornia.com on May 15. Carmelvalleycalifornia.com will be an all-inclusive on-line guide to Carmel Valley. Hella, whose background is in public relations, was chatting with Daniel Barduzzi of Robles Del Rio and the need for a Carmel Valley website was exposed. In just a couple weeks carmelvalleycalifornia.com was a reality.

The Website Store is the storefront for Americanserver.com, a full-service website designing company in its third year. Americanserver websites include Stonepine, The Travel Writers Website and California Historic Country Inns.

While many web designers are pushing the latest animation graphic doo-dad, John Miner stresses simplicity. When designing John says he thinks of the 65 year old, new to the web. Would they know the spinning flower was actually a link? Probably not. John says his engineers are brilliant but forget not everyone spends 10 hours a day surfing the web. With a background in commercial photography and television John goes for big pictures, music and always viewable navigation bars. On an Americanserver website you can get to anywhere from anywhere.

Not only are Americanserver sites easy to use but placement on search engines is also part of the hosting service. Short of paying for the top spot, John does everything he can to ensure his clients get top billing. While I was visiting, John put in a search for one of his clients in the 'Carmel Gallery' category. Over one million matches were found but his client was number 8. Not bad. Carmelvalleycalifornia.com will feature recreation, events, wine tasting, lodging, wedding planning - in short all of the unique features Carmel Valley has to offer for the entire on-line world to see.

You can visit the Website Store at Mid Valley Center between Mail Boxes Etc. and Carmel Valley Roasting Company or on the web at www.americanserver.com.

The Legal Corner by BARRY Harrow

Rule 2-100

I have been so busy in the last several months that I have not been unable to write my articles for the Sun. I apologize to those readers who in the past have indicated their enjoyment of this column and I appreciate their comments.

Although I cannot always guarantee that I will have the time to contribute each and every week, I will do as much as I can.

In previous columns, I discussed the California Rules of Professional Conduct, which govern the ethical conduct of attorneys in California. The rules provide guidance to attorneys about how to conduct themselves in their relationships with clients and other attorneys. I should again point out that the vast majority of attorneys abide by these ethical principals and live by high standards, despite what is carried in the popular media.

Rule 2-100 discusses Communication With a Represented Party. It affords protections to parties from being manipulated or unduly influenced by an opposing attorney. It states as follows:

"(A) While representing a client, a member shall not communicate directly or indirectly about the subject of the representation with a party the member knows to be represented by another lawyer in the matter, unless the member has the consent of the other lawyer.

(B) For purposes of this rule, a 'party' includes:

(1) An officer, director, or managing agent of a corporation or association, and a partner or managing agent of a partnership; or

(2) An association member or an employee of an association, corporation, or partnership, if the subject of the communication is any act or omission of such person in connection with the matter which may be binding upon or imputed to the organization for purposes of civil or criminal liability or whose statement may constitute an admission on the part of the organization.

(C) This rule shall not prohibit:

(1) Communications with a public officer, board, committee, or body; or

(2) Communications initiated by a party seeking advice or representation from an independent lawyer of the party's choice; or

(3) Communications otherwise authorized by law."

In the discussion of the rule, it is clearly stated that the rule is intended to control communications between an attorney and persons the attorney knows to be represented by another attorney unless a statutory scheme or case law will override the rule. The exceptions include such things as the right of employees to organize and to engage in collective bargaining, employee health and safety, or equal employment opportunity.

It is also made clear that the parties themselves may communicate directly with respect to the subject matter of the representation, and nothing in the rule prevents an attorney from advising the client that such communication can be made.

Generally speaking, however, attorneys may not communicate directly with clients of other attorneys concerning the subject of the representation.

In this way, the rules seek to protect clients from overzealous attorneys who attempt to use their position and knowledge to take unfair advantage of another attorney's client.

Many times, attorneys feel that it is a good idea for all parties and attorneys to get together and try to work things out. In those cases the attorneys and clients may speak directly with each other without violating the rule. On other occasions, an attorney may feel that the client can communicate important or complicated information directly to the other attorney and may therefore consent to the direct communication. In other words, the rule serves a good purpose and the attorneys and clients in specific cases are permitted to suspend its operation whenever it makes sense.

Big Business?

Is this a new business enterprise? Right in front of a bottled goods store on the main street of one of the last "little home towns" on the Monterey Peninsula?

Two clean-cut, (I think that means not wearing dirty overalls), high school age males were standing near a paper rack. Along comes a young man, maybe 25 to 30. As he passes the two possible students, on his way into the store, one of them hands him a five-dollar bill. In a couple minutes, he comes back out, lays a pack of cigarettes on top of the paper rack, and walks across the street. One of the two students pockets the pack of cigarettes, not wanting to see them just go to waste, like having the wind blow them into the gutter.

So, the kid paid five dollars for twenty cigarettes, which I thought was just terrible, because, many years ago, on a battleship that was my home for two years, my buddies (I did not smoke) bought cigarettes for fifty cents a carton. Lesser brands were thirty-five cents, which was still quite a lot - half a day's pay, at $21 per month.

But, look at the good side. Two students desperate for some way to demonstrate to their buddies that they were not only old enough to smoke, they were smart enough to know how to obtain cigarettes, which can do a lot for an otherwise unnoticed kid's ego. Best of all, the Good Samaritan who made it possible made enough profit to stay nearby to help some other under-age tobacco customer.

I'm reminded of the remarkable bootlegging industry. It was made possible, many years ago, by a law that a number of well-meaning people expected would reduce liquor drinking in America. Hi-jacking cigarette delivery trucks and selling the cigarettes on the black market should do a lot for kids who want the finer things in life.

Paparazzi

The danci and king, Ed G

Dave Wakeling taking a brief respite from his adoring fans at Doc's.

AROUND TOWN with Mac Talley

From the evidence of the packed Fishbone show at Doc's Nightclub last week (that featured slamming, moshing and crowd surfing), Monterey residents are ready to come out of hibernation from their winter caves and get physical! Though not necessarily in the way Olivia Newton-John meant...

It's a big weekend at Bluefin Billiards. After swing music night on Thursday, to break from their usual fare, Bluefin presents a DJ Dance party with Sights & Sounds on Friday. On Saturday, one of Monterey's favorite reggae acts, the Tony Miles Band, skanks their way into the Fin with their crowd-pleasing, rock steady groove. With their first-rate musicians and charismatic leader, it's easy to see why TMB are continually in demand. The most important show of the weekend though, will be the special Monterey County AIDS Benefit on Sunday, featuring The Uninvited. Yes, you heard me right. Strangely enough, The Un are more popular in our area than anywhere else in the Country. This is the first time they have ever appeared at Bluefin, so the place should be packed with their fans and those who want to support MCAP (Monterey County AIDS Project). MCAP has been around for 14 years and proceeds from this event will directly benefit MCAP's client serving programs that include providing HIV positive or AIDS patients with medications, eyeglasses, dental care, food, transportation and counseling. MCAP will host its outreach table, distributing literature and safer sex items. Tickets are $12 in advance, $15 at the door available at the MCAP office in Seaside, 780 Hamilton in Seaside, Bytes Internet Café, 403 Calle Principal and of course at Blue Fin Café and Billiards. Call MCAP at 394-4747 or BlueFin at 375-7000 for more information. Though the music will be festive, this is an important evening to raise awareness on a serious disease that hasn't vanished. The special show will run 6pm to midnight.

The Uninvited will play at an MCAP AIDS benefit this Sunday at BlueFin 6-midnight.

This Thursday, Doc's will host Tina & the B-Sides. Tina Schlieske brings her 4-piece band from Minneapolis to our peninsula, and they are reputed to play a country, rootsy style welded onto hip-hop beats. Apparently, the kids call it "Roots & Loops". She will feature songs from her new Sire records CD: It's All Just The Same, which has notable guests like Gary Louris of The Jayhawks (the first and best of all the alternative country-rock bands). Me'Shell NdegeOcello who (should change the absurd spelling of her name) plays bass on a song. Tina covers too much ground to be easily categorized; just check her out! Local wailer Blue O'Brien and her band Blue open the show. What is it with groups around here changing their names right and left? It's confusing, and writers have to list their present and past monikers. If you have to do it, at least make the new name better than the old one. Teraplane (formerly Freight Train) returns to Doc's on Friday with their gritty Black Crowes--by way of Carmel--raunch & roll style. They have a young and faithful following, and Monterey's Trial By Fire will be a good match musically for the opening slot. Saturday, Doc's hosts a special show by Maria Muldaur. Yes, the very same who enticed us with the 70's hit "Midnight At The Oasis". She is touring in support of her new CD, Southland Of The Heart, which continues her soulful, blues-based music. The title song was written by one of the greatest Canadian songwriters (besides Leonard Cohen) Bruce Cockburn. She'll also play hits like "I'm A Woman", so put your camel to bed and check her out. Opening the show is female guitar-slinger Evie Sands. She was a teenage phenomenon in the 60's and had a huge hit with "Any Way That You Want Me" in 1969. She is back with her first album in 20 years, Women In Prison. (One of my favorite movies!) Evie mixes swampy rock, country and blue-eyed soul into a distinctive sound that has been compared to Bonnie Raitt at her best.

The illustrious Ms. Sandy Shore is brining two days of jazz to Quail Lodge this weekend. Saturday the 2nd Annual Rising Star Concert will be held to benefit the Scleroderma Foundation. The Rising Stars include keyboardist Brian Culbertso, the Braxton Brothers (twins who mix funk, jazz and RB) and the new guy, Englishman Chris Standing known for acid jazz and instrumental music. The show begins at 2p.m. (gates open at 1) at Quail Meadows at Quail Lodge in Carmel Valley. Follow the signs. Tickets are $30 general and $40 for preferred seating (rows 2-10). Sunday's show will feature Diana Krall with the Kevin Mahogany Band opening. Tickets for Krall are $40. For more information call 649-1223.

Sly McFly's presents Cruisin' Deuces on Thursday, and the return of The Firebirds on Friday. They are a raunchy, gritty blues band from across the bay, then Terry Hiatt, a Sly's favorite and certified guitar-master will tear it up on Saturday. Rumor has it that Sly's owner Jack Bernum is preparing to expand the size of their club. His motto is: "Help us tear down the wall and watch us grow this summer!" Anyone who has seen Red Beans & Rice and other popular bands down there, knows that they need more room for the weekend crowds.

Don't forget Exotic Dancers on Monday night at McGarrett's for the thong-of-heart. Just don't get hit by one of those swinging augmentations; that can really smart! (Do you think Pamela Anderson's recent reductive surgery will cause a new trend?) Oh yeah, Wednesday's country night with DJ Johnny Morgan is always popular.

ON THE FOOD FRONT with Andrea GRECO

A Visit to Piatti Complete With New Chef

There are so many great restaurants on our peninsula that it is difficult to pick one when planning an evening out. There are a great number of factors that must be taken into account when deciding where to dine including service, atmosphere, location and most importantly, quality. I found all of these at Piatti Ristorante in downtown Carmel.

I have supped at Piatti in the past, and have always been very pleased with the food, service and the surroundings. Piatti has a very warm, social climate that many Carmelites enjoy. But, like many people accustomed to consistently good food, I am fearful of change. When I heard that Piatti had added a new chef to its payroll, I was a little bit skeptical. My trepidation was put to rest after I dined there last week. Not only did I experience fine cuisine, but the exceptional service and ambience remains a constant.

Piatti's new chef, Brent Peppernau

Chef Brent Peppernau hails from Oregon and is a graduate from the Scottsdale Culinary Institute, Scottsdale, Arizona. He has four years of restaurant management and was most recently a chef at the Piatti in Scottsdale. An experienced pastry chef , Brent has completely revamped Piatti's dessert faire.

Peppernau has introduced some tantalizing new dishes to Piatti's existing menu, focusing on seafood and fresh, local produce, while retaining old Piatti favorites. He enjoys working with Italian cuisine, which is beneficial considering that Piatti is an Italian restaurant. "I like the philosophy of Italian cooking. The style incorporates the freshest ingredients and simplest cooking styles to bring out the best flavor."

Last Wednesday, I dined there with a friend. I'm not really a fan of eating alone, and I figured that if I was going to adequately review the food menu, I would have to order a lot of food (Nice excuse, don't you think?)

As soon as we were seated (next to the fireplace-my favorite spot), we were brought a basket of bread and their famous "Piatti oil." I know that most restaurants serve bread, but the dipping oil that is served at Piatti is so, so, so good. I will warn you, do not plan any social interaction after consuming this substance. The combination of olive oil, balsamic vinegar, garlic and red pepper flakes make for a savory dipping sauce, but may make you a candidate for a Listerine ad.

We started our meal with red wine from Piatti's extensive wine list. Toni, our waitress, suggested we try the calamari appetizer ($7.95). If you are a fan of calamari, you will not be disappointed. It was lightly battered and very tender and the serving was not "appetizer size." This dish alone could have been a meal.

Next, we ordered the Zuppa Ceci ($7.95) a puree of chickpeas, vegetable broth and garlic, topped with smoked pancetta. We both loved this soup. The pancetta really added to the creamy, light garlic flavor, and of course, I ate all of mine and finished my friend's serving as well.

For the main course, I decided on the Mahi-Mahi Siciliana ($15.95). Grilled with a light citrus glaze, it was laid on a bed of sautéed swiss chard and was accompanied by cous-cous. The fish was very fresh and tender, and the flavor was out of this world. The chard was sautéed with garlic slices and was a nice accompaniment to the fish.

My friend had an old Piatti stand-by, the Pizzetta with chicken and goat cheese ($9.95), baked in their famous pizza oven. This ten-inch pizza is large enough for a meal with some left to share. I have ordered it in the past, but I had to make sure that it was as good as before. So, after begging my friend for a slice, I can now attest, it is as good as always.

We were both pleasantly stuffed after our meal, but we had to try a dessert. Since we are both huge Crème Bruleè fans, we decided to split one. This creamy custard concoction with a caramelized sugar top ($4.95) was so tasty, I was wishing that I had ordered one all for myself.

Everything about our dining excursion at Piatti was outstanding. The service was efficient and friendly. The atmosphere was as fun and social as always and the food, a testament to the new chef, was better than before. I highly recommend that you treat yourself to an evening at Piatti.

(Piatti Ristorante is open every day for lunch and dinner. It has a full bar, indoor and upstairs patio seating. It is located on the corner of Junipero and 6th Avenue in Carmel. Entrees range from $9.95-$21.95. For reservations, please call 625-1766)

race day by STEVE MOUW

Superbikes in the rain?

Rain rain go away. That was the first thought that went through my mind when I rose out of bed this last Sunday morning.

All prepared for an exciting day of motorcycle racing at Laguna Seca I looked out my bedroom window to see a light rain falling. Looking at the ground I could see it had been raining for a while. In Aptos where I live it is not unusual to see fog, mist, or even rain when the rest of the Monterey Bay Area is basking in sunshine, so with a small glimmer of hope and a fresh cup of strong black coffee I loaded up the trusty Volkswagen full of kids, bikes, wagons - and of course my race tickets - hoping the weather would clear up before I rounded the Moss Landing power plant.

To my dismay, the closer we got to the track, the harder it seemed to rain. The only encouraging sign I could see was that no one on a motorcycle was traveling the opposite direction, so we headed on. Into Laguna Seca we drove with still a slight drizzle, but we had made it this far so we headed in.

As we were stepping out of the van around 11 a.m. I could hear in the distance the slow but growing roar of motorcycles starting up in the distance.

A steady rain continued to fall as we stood in the grandstands to watch the first race and I could hardly believe they were actually going to start. But start they did! After a few spills by some of the riders, the 600cc race was won by Tommy Haden of Kentucky on a Yamaha.

The racers broke for lunch and the clouds started to clear. It seemed as if the race gods knew that the superbikes were coming up.

The Superbike race started with a flurry going hot and heavy with #95 Anthony Gobert leading most of the way. After a red flag in the 21st lap of a 28 lap race there was some question on whether to even restart the race - but they did.

The restart allowed Doug Chandler of Salinas to move up in the field from fifth to third ahead of Miguel Duhamel.

Anthony Gobert of Australia rode to victory even after giving up position after the restart but regained the lead at the corkscrew after a daring pass. #66 Matt Mladin rode to a second place finish on his Suzuki. Mladin was so incensed by the restart that he refused to participate in the post race press conference.

The Superbikes return to Laguna Seca July 9, 10 and 11th. Don't miss it. I am sure that Mat Mladin, Doug Chandler and Miguel Duhamel will want another chance at Anthony Gobert on Laguna Seca's twisty track.

THE MONTEREY BAY SALMON REPORT by Steve Perry

Still No Fish

Well, folks, I'll keep this one brief. Essentially, nothing has changed. Commercial salmon fishing started Saturday and the reports so far are about as dismal as the party boats. Commercial fishermen went as far as five miles out looking for salmon with little to no luck.

All I can say is, they'll get here eventually. The weather is finally cooperating now so we'll see what happens during the following week. Hopefully, better news next time.

YOUR WORLD & MINE by Araby Colton

We Have a Chance

Once again we are privileged to reprint excerpts from a letter to Rosemary Matson from her friend, Harry C. Meserve, retired Unitarian Minister. Says Meserve: "we now face two undeclared wars, neither of which has received more than a minimum of discussion by the public. One is already inflicting severe damage on the people of Iraq, the other threatens the people of Yugoslavia and surrounding Balkan nations, The Clinton administration and the Congress are caught in an addiction to violence as the only way to maintain peace. But violence has proved itself the one sure way of continuing war. We must somehow break the spell of violence…it is the deadliest of drugs."

Our national addiction is plainly shown by the military appropriations proposed by the administration…an expenditure of $281 billion over the next fiscal year, an increase of $12.6 billion. Compare: $35 billion for education; $31 billion for health; $24 billion for the environment; $19 billion for science, and $6 billion for Social Security and Medicare. How misplaced can our priorities get?

Why have we not signed the agreement to abolish land mines? 100 other countries have. Land mines cause thousands of deaths and maimings, frequently children.

We are the largest merchants of deadly weapons in the world. We influence other nations to behave as we want them to by offering them weapons from our abundant stock. Poorer countries use funds given for humanitarian purposes to pay for death-dealing weapons.

Most of all, we delay doing the one thing that might make for peace, new hope, and strength around the world. We don't lead, and as the dominant nuclear power we must lead the way to the abolition of nuclear weapons.

Johnathon Schell has said (The Nation, 2/99) "the collapse of the Soviet Union and the end of the Cold War gave us a gift of time." We are alone in dominating the nuclear landscape. We have a chance to take leadership in moving ourselves, and other nuclear states, away from the utter insanity of considering nuclear war.
As the only nation that has so far used nuclear weapons, we must be the first to turn things around, and start the process of ridding the world of nuclear threat that hangs over every living being.

I do not expect that all these issues, and many other related ones, will be dealt with creatively in the near future. But our generation, through the outraged consciences of people everywhere, could begin to reverse the tide, and curb the addition to violence.

Back in the 60s, when people protested warlike ways, we used to join hands and sing a kind of chant, "All we are saying is give peace a chance." Why not?

I have a letter from James E. Brumm, Executive Vice President of Mitsubishi International Corporation (the largest corporation in the world, I'm told) assuring us of the love Mitsubishi has for the gray whales. He tells us that the project "will come no closer than two and five kilometers from the whales. Sounds good, until you remember that five kilometers is no more than about three miles. And the project, as he calls is, will include 116 square miles of evaporation ponds…just three miles from the lagoon! He assures us that the lagoon will "look the same as it does now" a hundred years from now.

How can this be, with giant diesel engines pumping six thousand gallons of water out of the lagoon every second? With a mile-long concrete pier, probably killing whales, and their babies, and portending massive oil spills?

We suggest you contact the Natural Resources Defense Council, 40 West 20th St., New York, NY 10011, or call them at (212) 727-2700, or (212) 727-4400, and ask them to publish a reply to this Mitsubishi fellow's letter, point by point. I certainly shall.

Sleep on the World's Most Luxurious Bed...

the New SUPERBED

Win a Queen SUPERBED and a SnugFleece® by entering the Raffle to Benefit the Central Coast Scleroderma Foundation.

After a year of research and development, we have designed and are now building what may be the most luxurious bed in the world. I went to each of our suppliers and asked them, "If you were going to build the best, most luxurious bed in the world, what materials, regardless of cost, would you use?" Well, they told me, and the results of these recommendations were given to master builders, Dale Gingerich and John Babine. They then proceeded to experiment with various combinations until they came up with what we affectionately call our "Superbed".

Mouth of the Valley Traffic

On March 24, 1999, the Transportation Agency for Monterey County (TAMC), with an 11-6 vote, removed the Hatton Canyon Freeway Project as the number one funded highway priority for Monterey County and transferred the funds to the Prunedale Bypass Project. This decision ended fifty years of contention and confusion, and it allows TAMC to work with the California Department of Transportation (Caltrans) to design and construct improvements along the existing Highway 1 corridor that are affordable and can be delivered in the immediate future.

It is time to put the contentions of the past to rest and to move forward with delivery of the twelve operational improvements that are fully funded and have the blessing of the California Transportation Commission.

For decades, we have been a community trapped in gridlock while we waited for a 2.5 mile $54 million freeway that never would appear. Despite Caltrans' advocacy and extensive design work, the project was missing two important items: a Coastal Development Permit and an Army Corps of Engineers 404 Permit. The most glaring omission is the Coastal Development Permit. While it would have been possible to apply for the permit years ago, Caltrans delayed indefinitely any effort to apply for the permit. This oversight is a bit like planning and designing a commercial building in Carmel and never going to the Planning Department to see if it is consistent with local zoning ordinances. Last year when Caltrans did finally make application, Coastal Commission staff noted thirty-four inconsistencies with the Local Coastal Plan.

On April 16, 1999, a landmark decision was rendered by Appeals Court Judge Judith D. McConnell regarding the Bolsa Chica Subdivision in Orange County. Judge McConnell ruled very clearly that the California Coastal Act does not allow construction in wetlands and specifically stated that this also applied to roadways. This ruling clearly indicated why the Hatton Canyon Freeway would never have been permitted by the California Coastal Commission since a portion of the project is in the coastal zone and contains several wetland areas.

It is time to put the contentions of the past to rest and to move forward with delivery of the twelve operational improvements that are fully funded and have the blessing of the California Transportation Commission. Last month I met with Assembly member Fred Keeley, TAMC staff, Monterey County Public Works, and Caltrans and discussed a variety of additional modifications that should help improve traffic flow in and around the mouth of Carmel Valley.

It was the first time in years that all members present were unanimously committed to working together. Last week TAMC took the first step toward improving the roadway by authorizing a Project Study Report for future road modifications on Highway 1 in the Carmel Area. State government is a bit like the traffic at the mouth of the valley, it often moves very slowly. Caltrans' District Five Director Jay Walter's promise to work expeditiously should mean fewer roadblocks and more progress.
